

We are happy to announce an online training on:

“Leave no one behind – Challenges and opportunities of implementation”

21 September – 13 November 2020

Why this online training?

Leave no one behind (LNOB) is a key principle of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development. Its implementation comes with new challenges and often remains unclear to development practitioners. How do we make sure that we include the poorest and most disadvantaged in our projects? What are best practices, challenges and hands-on experiences in applying the LNOB principle? The online training will try to answer these questions by facilitating exchange and providing inputs to better operationalize LNOB in practice.

The training will be conducted on behalf of the Deutsche Gesellschaft für Internationale Zusammenarbeit (GIZ) in cooperation with the Swiss Agency for Development and Cooperation (SDC) and the Academy for International Cooperation of GIZ (AIZ).

Who is it for?

The training is explicitly developed for a diverse target group: development practitioners representing bilateral and multilateral donor institutions as well as NGOs or national and local partner institutions are invited to participate. It is believed that the course format will benefit from participants with diverse institutional backgrounds working at different levels all over the world.

What to expect?

An interactive and lively learning experience awaits you: exchange with fellow practitioners, a moderated online forum and assignments to apply LNOB directly in your working context. International experts will provide input through weekly webinars, answer your questions and share relevant material. The training consists of different modules which will cover a variety of topics: the concept of LNOB, current challenges and entry points, LNOB project planning/ implementation/ monitoring & evaluation, LNOB lobbying & advocacy as well as LNOB action planning. Useful tools and instruments will complement the training resources.

Crucial part, however, is your involvement. The course will give the opportunity for peer learning, sharing and exchanging on experiences from your working context and bringing in individual expertise. Furthermore, you will have the opportunity to work in breakout groups according to your interests and thematic areas. An online facilitator will accompany you throughout the whole learning experience.

When and how long?

The training offers 6 modules in the form of webinars. The total course duration is 8 weeks (21 September – 13 November 2020). We recommend investing approx. 4 hours per week for learning (1,5 hours for participation in the webinar and 2,5 hours for offline learning and assignments).

What does it cost?

The online training is offered for 650,00 Euro for GIZ employees and 760,00 Euro for external participants. For participants from SDC, special conditions apply.
